

Backpropagation can be seen as a specific of Automatic Differentiation, a very powerful framework to acquire gradients numerically. The governing principle is the same, propagating the gradients through functions with closed form derivative, utilising the chain rule.